Hey I kind of think both sides can be really hypocritical. user1 If I had to say, I guess Republicans. But I agree with you user2 Yeah, I think especially when it comes to the opposite side, both of them can get hypocritical about eachother. user1 Yes exactly. I think the focus should not be on faults or negative aspects user2 Focusing on who is more hypocritical doesn't really solve anything at all user2 We as humans usually reflect on ourselves, daily user2 I agree user1 Like an example of this could be the Democrats disagreeing with the election results in 2016 and the Republicans doing so in in 2020.

about ourselves all too easily user2 Both sides can be in the wrong

Yes absolutely

user2

user2

user2

user2

in haste

user2

user2

user2

serious. LOL

We can find fault and negatives

user1

user1

I did see a trend start though user2

What do you think about news

Like Fox vs CNN

user1

user1

user1

user1

user1

easier user1

casters on either side? They can be very hypocritical. user1

Yes newscasters and news companies are mostly entertainment I believe.

And I guess the trend of denying results outright was from the (R)

So true, its annoying seeing people follow them blindly! Yes it's important to consider be understanding of others entertainment disguised as who follow blindly user2 YEs, and take everything into account. Even if it doesn;t neccesarily support our ideas.

Yes, it's not wise especially by making up our minds and deciding something or believing something Especially understanding those everything we are told and shown. To have a good understanding and It's healthy to question user2 I agree

we search for truth

Sometimes your opinion can be changed with proper evidence

People search for meaning i think imo, I like to know as much as possible is what i'm saying

Yes which isn't a bad or good thing user2 So true! Plus I think if everyone focused on that instead of being on their polar opposite sides then everyone could get along much

Yes. Maybe there is some design in the polar opposite thing user2