Both parties tend to be hypocritical user1 Depends on the issue user1 but from my experience Republicans are hypocritical in may of their policy beleifs user1 where Democrasts are because of their lack of focus user1 That is true, but I would choose Republicans more than Democrats on the issue of the value of life. They want to control a woman's right to choose yet worry about protecting gun owners when massacres occur with the use of an AR15 user2 I wholeheartedly agree user1 These are the same people who didn't want to be vaccinated or wear masks, yet they don't care about the life of a woman or the victims of rape. I also think they are hypocritical about bailing people out. They helped Wall Street criminals but they don't want people getting food stamps or welfare payments. user2 There is also the speed that they will push through policies on transgender yet stall on larger issues like gun control user1 Why can we bail out industries and yet be furious that people want to make a living wage to work? I think that is ridiculous! user2 Or that there is a complaint that no one wants to work right now due to low wages, yet free market says then we should pay them more for services user1 Totally true! I still don't believe they will allow gun reform even after Uvalde. user2 Its a travesty user1 I would be happy with just a single step towards something user1 an extra day of waiting user1 Agreed, anything would be an improvment. user2 or no gun show excemption user1 anything user1 I am more fustrated that we don't try anything and compare user1 a simple scientific approach user1 we have data from peer countries of gun buy back programs working well user1 They say it's a mental health issue but they don't want universal health care. As long as the money is there they won't be serious about changing anything and it's heartbreaking. user2 Mental Health programs don't pay the hospitals so it doesn't help fun the market user1 There is a hypocracy about Mental Health being the cuase user1 I am a teacher and I don't want to carry a gun. If the police didn't want to go in and confront this person what am I going to do? It would have to be so secure in my classroom when would I even get it in an emergency? There's no serious discussion. user2 My spouce is also a teacher and why would a kindergarten teacher have an assult rifle user1 The logistics alone of a teacher being armed is nuts user1 Anything to deflect from the issue. Did you see the ad with a toddler holding an AR15 that talked about raising a child in the way it should go from the Bible? I am most sick of them pretending they have a monopoly on faith or values! user2 I am disappointed in the suggestion of all schools getting ex vets to work as guards. Where in the budgets do they do that for some schools in poor communities? user1 Most teachers I know don't want to be armed. I hope your wife is able to enjoy her summer. user2 Same for you. user1 Exactly, the wealthy school districts will have it while poor kids remain vulnerable. They can't find enough police or military people now so where are all of these people coming from and how do they get vetted? Thanks. user2 Hopefully something will happen and we stop seeing guns as a golden goose and more like an extremely dangerous tool that should be highly regulated or at least regulated like a car at the least. user1
