I feel republicans are more hypocritical. The perfect example is Donald Trump swearing covid wasn't real until him and his wife contracted it then he had to admit he was sick from covid which he preached was not a real thing.

I think Republicans are more hypocritical than Democrats. Republicans are very cut and dry in what thy think will make the country better and what will be better for the people. It always comes down to power and money and the Republicans are quick to turn on each other. They want to save the country money and be conservative with the spending, but they pay themselves ridiculous salaries and help funnel money into things that help themselves. They do not look out for the interest of the people.

I completely agree. Republicans are for big business and what will help those businesses and themselves. They held off relief funds for citizens in need until their agendas were met.
